Sayyid Al-Hakeem: Broad Popular Participation Reflects Iraqis Post Election Consciousness, Stability Adherence

Sayyid Al-Hakeem, head of the National State Powers Alliance, received the Minister of Labor and Social Affairs, Ahmed Al-Asadi, and exchanged congratulations with him on the successful conclusion of the recent elections.

Sayyid Al-Hakeem commended the voter turnout, noting that it reflects the awareness of the Iraqi public and its commitment to the democratic and electoral process, as well as the political maturity that enables citizens to shape the country’s future.

His Eminence highlighted the importance of building on the positive momentum generated by the elections to strengthen stability in Iraq, stressing the need to form a government capable of turning electoral pledges into actionable programs, with services and the economy at the forefront of the country’s priorities.

Sayyid Al-Hakeem also called for preserving security, political, and social stability, emphasizing the importance of continued engagement with regional and international partners in ways that advance Iraq’s interests and enhance its regional role.
